

ABOUT JADON JACKMAN

Jadon Jackman (b. 2003) is a colour-blind self taught Barbadian artist who specializes in ink, graphite and charcoal.

As both a hyperrealist and abstract artist, his art varies in theme from addressing social issues to lacking a theme entirely; however, through both art styles, Jadon aims to visually distance the viewer from reality.

Through hyperrealism, Jadon creates an image almost indecipherable from a photo that only after closer inspection, its impossible elements are realized and the meaning of the piece is recognized.

Similarly, through his abstract art, Jadon defies reason. By combining two-dimensional and three-dimensional shapes and silhouettes, he ignores the laws of physics and only provides the viewer with a cycle of short-lived understanding.
